flesh and BLOOD

supporting all animal welfare organisations

Slaughter of the innocent!

This defenceless seal pup is just three weeks old. Its mother is out of camera view but only a few feet to the left of the picture - helpless to prevent her offspring from this agonising death.
This horriffic cruelty is repeated beteeen 150.000 to 180,000 times each year. It is not a cull (To keep numbers down) it is done for money.
Sometimes perhaps next year, these cowardly killers will be stopped, Inside we show you how you can help.

Message from the Editor

Thank you for taking the time to buy this magazine and although this first edition has fewer pages than we would have liked, we are working to a very tight budget at present, however, hopefully with your support, our second one will be bigger and better!

what is flesh and blood

Flesh & Blood is a completely new, limited budget, private subscription publication. We are totally dedicated to reporting on and campaigning against, the ever increasing animal exploitation and cruelty currently thriving in the world today. We will also be reporting on the various animal welfare organisations compassionately fighting and speaking for the persecuted animals that cannot speak for themselves. We agree with them – Animals have rights too!

F & B magazine is at present an irregular publication (approximately every two months) our success depends on your much valued subscription. We would like you to take part in this magazine, tell us what you think-how can we improve it? Your suggestions are always welcome:

PEN FRIEND?

If you would like a pen friend, drop us a line, it won't cost you anything. Just give some brief details about yourself and we'll do the rest!

FEEL STRONGLY ABOUT SOMETHING?

– Then get it off your chest! Write to us, tell us how you feel, we will print your letter, if we can!!!

Help!!

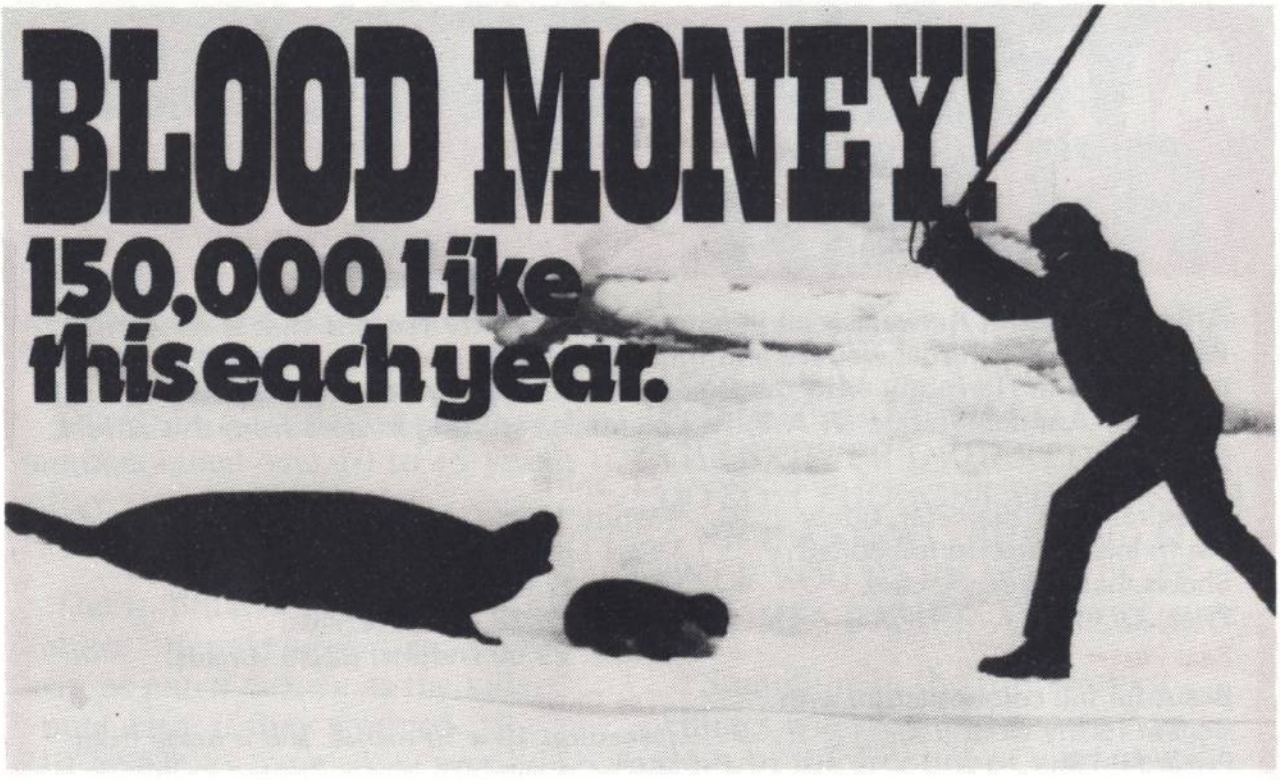

We need photo's of wildlife, if you have some, may we borrow them for future publication? We will return them, in good condition, in two to three weeks.

If your local newspaper reports on any interesting animal story (happy or sad) we would be grateful if you can send us a cutting.

Finally, we are working on a worldwide campaign to try to stop next years Canadian Seal slaughter. If you live outside England and would like to help, please contact us.

Important: If you require a reply, when writing, please enclose a s.a.e. if possible.

Flesh and Blood Magazine, P.O.Box 32 Stevenage Hertfordshire.

Every spring, off the Atlantic coast of Canada, many thousands of Harp Seal pups are born. A few weeks later most of them are dead – CLUBBED . . . . DROWNED . . . SHOT . . . brutally slaughtered by man . . . Why? Is it a cull to keep numbers down – ? NO! Is it because they eat too much fish? NO! Is it because they are savage and a threat to man? NO! The terrible truth is that these poor defenceless creatures suffer sickening, agonising deaths FOR MONEY.

A Canadian Minister once described it as no different than picking oranges off a tree. The photo above shows a Cow unable to defend its pup from agonising death. Every spring, until mid March this is repeated between 150,000 and 180,000 times.

You see mothers nuzzling chopped off flippers, smelling the scent on the fur to distinguish their babies from others. You often hear pitiful screams of pain in the distance, even the snow changes colour – to deep red.

Bill Jordan, an experienced RSPCA officer who went to see for himself in 1978 said "I never thought it would be so dreadful, I have seen women cry and even faint after being shown the RSPCA film. The Canadian government says the killing is humane – "Just like a slaughter house" – untrue, it is far worse.

If it is humane, why was Brian Davies of the International Fund for Animal Welfare jailed for taking reporters to the ice?

If you write to Canada House asking permission to go to the ice for next years killing, you will be refused, why?

Canada says the killings are necessary to preserve fish stocks – UNTRUE, there has never been any scientific survey of what Seals eat. No-one knows if they eat the same species of fish as we do. They usually live in waters around Greenland and when the Cows are rearing their young they eat nothing at all.

REFUSED

The RSPCA recently asked the Canadian Authorities for a two year ban on the slaughter, while an international team of experts investigate the Seals eating habits . . . REFUSED.

The RSPCA suggested reducing the numbers killed over 10 to 15 years, before stopping altogether . . . . . REFUSED.

The International Fund for Animal Welfare offered to pay Canada, each year, as much money as the killers would earn, if they stopped . . . . . REFUSED.

A Swiss businessman offered to build a factory in Newfoundland and employ all the men who kill Seals, paying them more money than they make from the killings, ... REFUSED.

The killing lasts about 6 weeks, 5,000 men are employed each year, if it were stopped before next year, no-one would suffer much loss.

EASY KILLER

"THE FIRST TIME I KILLED A SEAL, THAT WAS NOT EASY. I DID NOT WANT TO DO IT, BUT THE SKIPPER ORDERED ME TO DO SO. I THOUGHT IT WAS SUCH A NICE ANIMAL. BUT I DID IT. ONCE YOU HAVE DONE IT, IT BECOMES EASIER AND EASIER".

Sometime in the future, these killings will stop, there must be a limit to the amount of worldwide public pressure and growing hatred that the Canadian Authorities can take! One thing you can be sure of, organisations such as the International Fund for Animal Welfare and Greenpeace, will never give up . . . THEY WILL NEVER ABANDON THE SEALS.

Here, at the office of Flesh and Blood, we are working on an idea in which we can organise a worldwide campaign to bring this barbaric killing to an end. In the meantime:

WHAT YOU CAN DO...

The International Fund for Animal Welfare's campaign for the seals has begun and is going really well, but they need even more help from you. Write as indicated in the captions on the next page. The IFAW needs every one of you to send four letters each. These national leaders can stop the killing and should know how you feel.

It is absolutely vital that you write and let them know of your personal feelings and your desire to see the slaughter stopped.

Please write to them TODAY!

SAVAGE LUXURY~ BRITAINS INDIFFERENCE

Britains imports of Canadian seal products total about £½ million and are nearly all re-exported. The present British Government is hypocritically indifferent to the plight of the seals. It says that if the Harp Seal was threatened with extinction then it would ban all imports. In other words – as long as an animal is not rare Man can do what he likes. There was a time when Britain led the world in showing concern for animals, even to the point when some nations regarded this as a joke. Today the British Government's indifference is no laughing matter for those of us who are concerned about the seals. We know that the British people are outraged by the "hunt without pity". It was the power of the people that stopped the slaughter of the Orkney seal pups. That same power could force the Government to ban Canadian seal products as has the United States, France and Italy. A British ban could also help persuade W. Germany – the biggest importer of seal products – to do the same. This would make the "hunt without pity" into the hunt without profit.

ASHAMED TO BE BRITISH

The Minister of State for Trade has said to the House of Commons that any intervention with the Canadian Government over the seals "would un-doubtedly adversely affect our commercial interests and external relations". In other words - commerce before compassion.

11 June 1980

Dear Mr. Hubert,

Thank you for your letter of 2 June 1980. I can understand and sympathise with your feelings on this matter. Indeed it was because both the Minister for Consumer Affairs and I were aware of the very widespread concern expressed in Parliament and by many people throughout the country that we decided, in response to this, to take a positive and we hope effective initiative in this matter. As she announced just before Easter Mrs Oppenheim has decided to publish a draft Order, for consultation, using her powers under the Trade Descriptions Act to require all goods made from seal skins to be so described together with their country of origin.

This will, by informing consumers fully, enable them to use their considerable influence in the marketplace. By declining to buy such products they can accelerate the very sharp decline that has already taken place in the importation and sale of seal skins which come into this country not just from Canada but from many other sources as well.

We feel that this is a practical solution which takes account of the strong feelings which are widely held.

The suggestion that has come from a number of our correspondents that we might impose a unilateral ban on the import of these products from an individual country would almost certainly be inconsistent with our international obligations. By dealing with the problem as we are, we leave it open to the public to exercise full freedom of choice and to express their feelings in a positive way - an approach which we recently discussed with the RSPCA and which they accepted and endorsed, subject of course to a suggested monitoring period of three years.

Yours Sincerely,
Cecil Parkinson

CECIL PARKINSON

"It's my world too!"

Dear Friend,

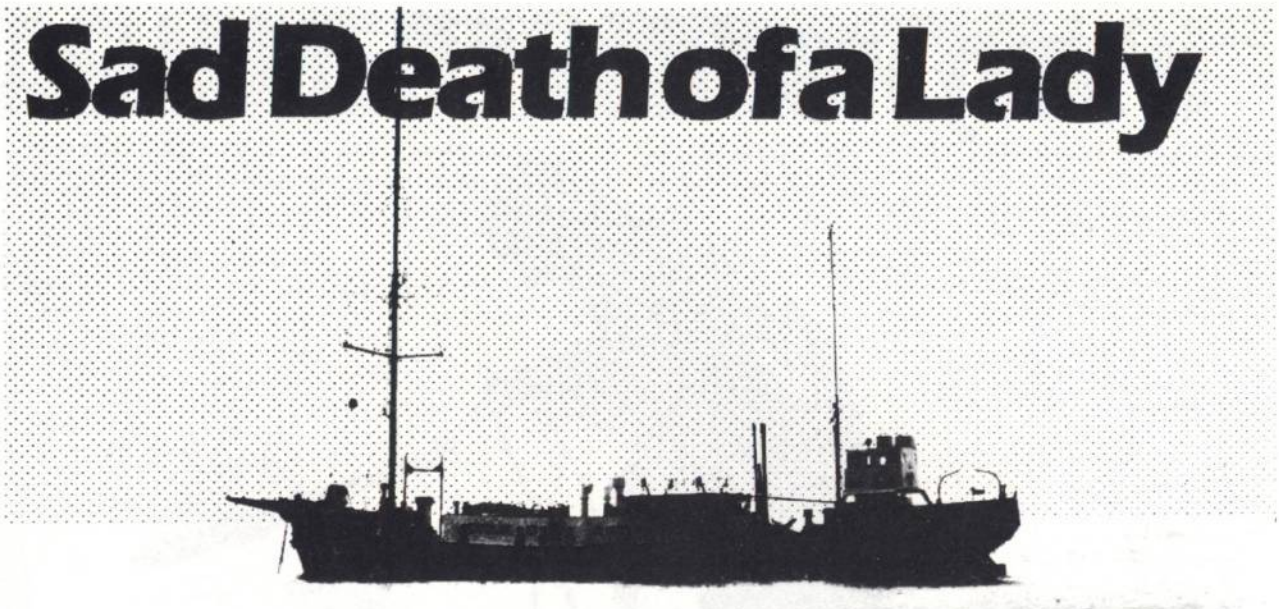

In the 15 years I have been fighting against Canada's barbaric seal hunt there have been some significant victories. The killing of Hood Seals in the Gulf of St. Lawrence is now illegal, as is the use of inhumane small calibre weapons that cause adult seals to die lingering deaths. The total number of seals killed annually has been reduced from a high of 300,000 to today's "quota" of 180,000 Harp Seals and 15,000 Hood Seals. Most importantly, the Gulf "commercial hunt" was banned in 1972. But there is still a wholesale slaughter going on. Tens of thousands of baby seals are battered to death each year. Even when shot with high powered rifles, many older seals escape, wounded, beneath the ice. (I have seen the sea red with the blood of wounded animals.) And now a new horror – adult seals caught in nets, trapped underwater as they try to return to their Arctic home. How long do they take to drown – what fear and agony do they suffer? Shame on those Canadian politicians who ignore the suffering of animals! But not all is bad news. I believe the end of the hunt is closer than ever before! Both IFAW's "Ban the Seal Trade" campaign in Europe and our worldwide petition drive are moving ahead strongly. We are getting great support from the media and from hundreds of thousands of concerned, outraged people everywhere. If IFAW members keep going, there is no doubt in my mind that we will obtain millions of signatures protesting the hunt. Let the Canadian Government try to claim that public concern over the slaughter is declining.

Please take the time to do the things we ask, both the seals and I need your help.

Thank you so much,

Sincerely,
Brian D. Davies
(Executive Director, IFAW)

Sad Death of a Lady

During the early hours of Thursday, March 20th the Radio Caroline ship M.V. Mi Amigo known affectionately by the Caroline organisation and 5 million supporters as "The Lady" sank in a North Sea storm. The station harmed no-one, except perhaps the B.B.C. and Home Office, and gave a lot of happiness to many people.

Over the last few years she had been giving free advertising space to many voluntary organisations such as Greenpeace, Friends of the Earth and Release. Last summer the Greenpeace ship "Rainbow Warrior" anchored alongside the Mi Amigo and one of the Caroline d.j's Tony Allen, interviewed the skipper on the slaughter of Whales and the dangers of Nuclear power. The interview lasted about an hour and was repeated a few weeks later.

Last year Caroline also started a campaign to collect £5,000 for a kidney machine, to go to a Mr. Eric Smith, whose own machine nearly killed him as it was always breaking down through old age.

Mr. Smith was considered too old by the Authorities for a new machine. Radio Caroline gladly gave him life, the appeal was a success and at the time of the "Mi Amigo" going down, were well on their way to a second machine. Typically, the success was given no coverage by the press or T.V.

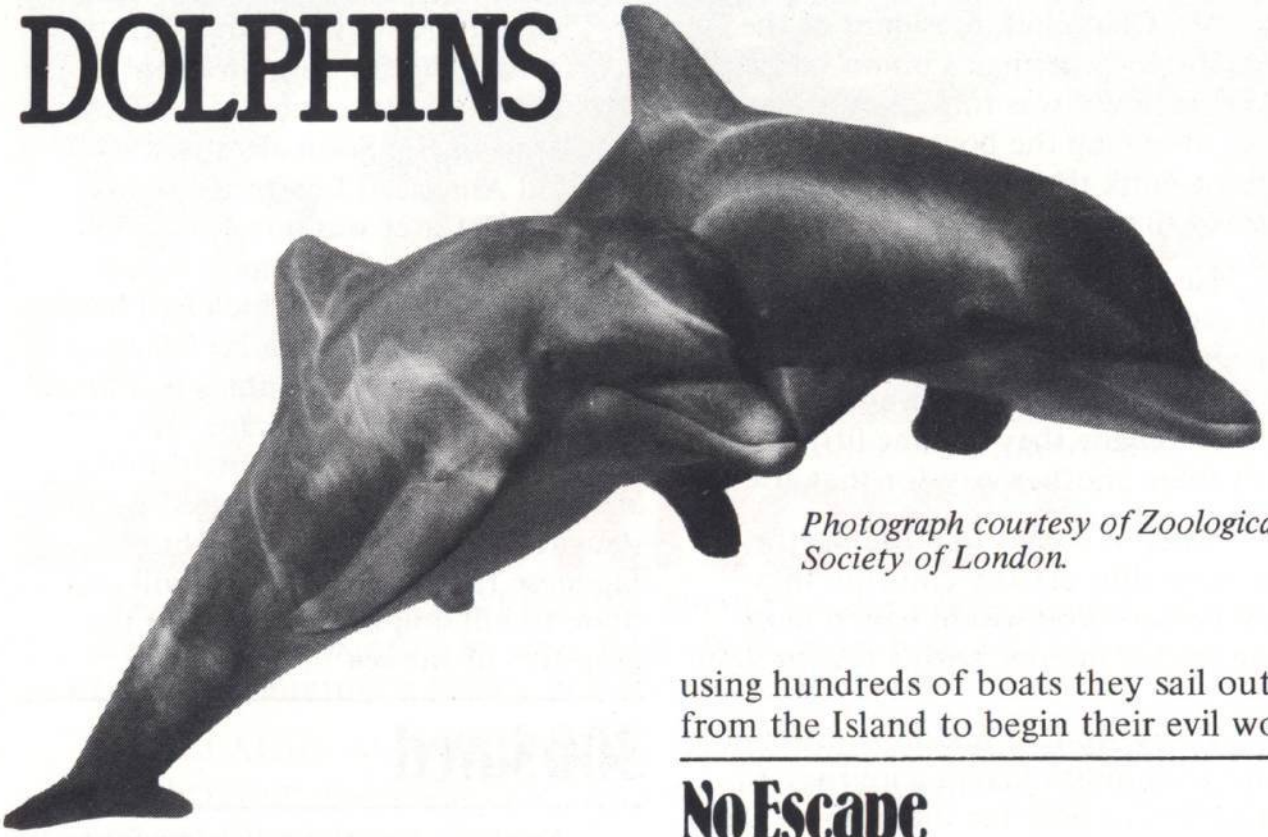

SAVE THE MI AMIGO APPEAL

The Caroline Roadshow have opened an appeal to raise the Mi Amigo from her watery grave. The idea is to raise enough money to refloat the ship, when she will be towed into Ramsgate and restored to her original condition and turned into a floating offshore radio museum and tourist attraction to rival HMS Belfast, the Cutty Sark and Nelson's Victory! If you think the same as us – that the Mi Amigo deserves to be saved, then a donation would be gratefully received:

DESPAIR OF THE GENTLE DOLPHINS

Photograph courtesy of Zoological Society of London.

Have you ever seen a dolphin without a smile? – Gentle – highly intelligent, friendly creatures.

These two in the picture are lucky, they will probably never know pain and suffering, never have the need to stop smiling, they live in safety at Whipsnade Zoo! For thousands of others it's a much different story, a story of sadness, of man's eagerness to kill without question or remorse, a story of barbaric cruelty and overwhelming injustice.

Every year off Thatsuno Island, Southern Japan, between January and April, tens of thousands of these beautiful, sensitive creatures are slaughtered beyond belief.

Japanese fishermen take part in this massacre by their thousands, using hundreds of boats they sail out from the Island to begin their evil work.

No Escape

They lay nets to trap the dolphins, blocking off any chance of escape. The dolphins are stabbed with iron spikes and hacked with axes. They try desperately hard to escape – their efforts are in vain. The sea appears to boil as the dolphins rise, their white tummies rolling over, screeching with pain. They try to leap for safety over the nets, with their stomachs trailing and fins cut off. Babies are pushed to the surface by their mothers in an attempt to stop them being crushed. The sea, like the sand on the beach, turns red with the spilled blood. The air is filled with pitiful screams of pain, the awful noise of killing. Dolphins are dragged on to the beach and left to pant to death. Mouths wide open. Baby dolphins are thrown onto the rocks – they do not smile any more.

Hint of Sadness?

Mr. Obata, 60, president of the Katsumoto fisherman's union said, "At one time I was told, they seemed to be attacking the boats in defiance. I don't think they really were, it only seemed that way".

He spoke without pleasure. There was even a hint of sadness in his voice. "If only there was another way", he said "tell me of another way". I hear that in Canada they kill the little seals. Isn't there another way for that also?"

When it comes to dolphins the Japanese shut off any emotion they may possess, you would have a hard time to find anyone with a tear in their eye.

Every April, a Buddhist priest from Katsumoto makes a journey to Thatsuno, to pray for the souls of the dolphins.

Memorial

A memorial stone has been erected, a single flower in a vase stands beneath it, engraved on the stone, a simple message, "To the memory of the dolphins – from the fishermans' union of Katsumoto".

What is the crime of the dolphins?

– THEY EAT FISH!!

More Dolphins Die

On Saturday, February 28th this year, a further 900 dolphins were slaughtered by fishermen off the Japanese Island of Iki. Soon after this a 36 year old American Environmentalist Mr. Dexter Cater was questioned by police in Tokyo after someone had released 250 dolphins which had been trapped by fishermen on Iki Island. The net holding the dolphins had been cut, enabling them to escape. Mr. Cater was later released. Environmentalists are known to be outraged by the slaughtering of the dolphins, but a Japanese fisherman said "We will continue to kill dolphins – they are the gangsters of the sea".

300 Saved

Another American visiting Japan was sentenced to 6 months jail on Friday, May 30th for freeing 300 dolphins which were to be slaughtered by Japanese fishermen, however, he escaped the prison sentence because his visa had expired, he was then ordered to be deported.

Organisations such as Dolphin Defence will do what they can to try to bring to and end this annual carnage – and perhaps one day the dolphins of Japan will be left to live as God intended. Without fear!

What can you do? Write to:

Embassy of Japan, 46 Grosvenor Street London W1.
Ask them to stop this tragic slaughter, which you consider a crime against nature and explain that dolphins have as much right to life as we do!!.

Prime Minister , 10 Downing Street, London SW1
Ask Mrs Thatcher to contact the Japanese G'ment, asking that the slaughter of the dolphins be stopped.

Your own MP. c/o House of commons
London SW1A 0AA
Ask your MP. to write to the Japanese Government and explain to him how you feel.

Safe in a League sanctuary – deer and their little ones live without fear.

DO YOU KNOW?

The LEAGUE AGAINST CRUEL SPORTS owns a large number of wild life sanctuaries amounting to more than 1000 acres where wild animals are protected and hunting is totally prohibited.

The LEAGUE AGAINST CRUEL SPORTS manages several farms. It's officers therefore understand the farmers point of view concerning hunting and are not just theorists.

The LEAGUE AGAINST CRUEL SPORTS provides a free legal service to farmers, landowners and any member of the public to help them seek justice if they have been aggrieved, or their rights ignored, by the hunt.

The LEAGUE AGAINST CRUEL SPORTS is the leading organisation that REALLY fights bloodsports. For details of membership please write to:

GREENPEACE NEWS

Rainbow Warrior saves more Whales (F & B Reporter)

Cruel and insensitive humans subject the Whale to the most barbarous and indiscriminate death imaginable, by explosive harpoon or by drowning in the purse-seine nets of Tuna fishing operations. The products of this slaughter are lubricating oil, leather softener, cosmetics, margarine (all have perfectly viable synthetic alternatives) and a certain amount of meat (a delicacy in Japan!).

Greenpeace are amongst those who say that this activity is utterly immoral and non-intelligent and is motivated by greed for short term personal gain rather than responsible consideration for life.

Greenpeace are currently committed to actively help the Whale avoid extinction, and yet again their activities have hit the headlines – FRIDAY JUNE 20th:

After searching for three days the Rainbow Warrior finally tracked down the Spanish Whaler, the last in Spains fleet. (Their remaining two Whaling ships were blown up last January by person or persons unknown.) Greenpeace believe that Spain are catching more than their allowed quota and therefore endangering a species. Spain deny this, although the Whaling station on the North West coast is closed to the public. Two photographers were arrested there in March and ITN were refused permission to film the station.

For one day and one night the Rainbow Warrior followed the Whaler to the hunting ground. Then a Spanish Navy patrol boat appeared. This did nothing to prevent the Greenpeace crew from carrying out their task. To stop the Whaling they took to the rubber boats and started to harass the Whaling ship, passing close to it's bows. A highly dangerous occupation, but the Greenpeace team are ready to risk their lives to protect the fin whale, already an endangered species. After three hours of dicing with death, a family of fin whales appeared. The Greenpeace crew positioned the inflatables between the Whaler and the whales. At one stage they were even riding on the back of one of the whales. This prevented the crew of the whaler from firing the harpoon for fear of hitting one of the Greenpeace crew.

VICTORY

After a while the harpoonist gave up, then a Spanish warship appeared. The Frigate ordered the Rainbow Warrior to stop, passing again and again across her bows – sometimes leaving only ten feet between the two ships.

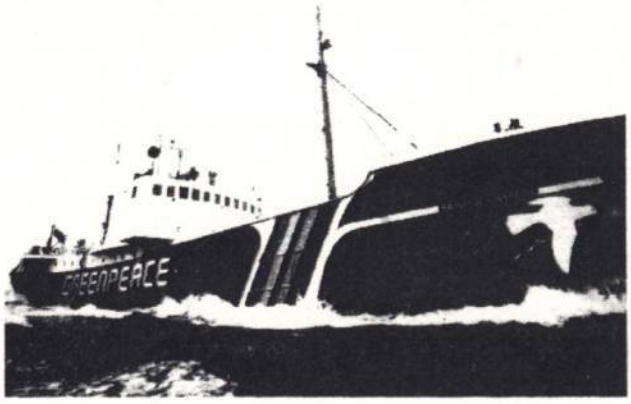

After two hours the crew of the Rainbow Warrior and Frigate reached a compromise. If the Whaling ship stopped, the Rainbow Warrior would stop. Both ships came to a halt and Greenpeace claimed yet another victory. A patrol boat arrived to assist the Frigate and then a Spanish Naval officer boarded the Rainbow Warrior with orders to arrest her.

Charged with interfering with Spanish whaling and refusing to stop when ordered by the Spanish Navy the Rainbow Warrior was then escorted to military harbour.

Sue Lloyd Roberts and an ITN camera crew were on board the "Warrior" and an exclusive film of these events were reported on ITN's News at Ten the following evening.

INVESTIGATION

Greenpeace are to ask the International Whaling Commission to look into the possibility of Spain killing more than their allowed quota. F & B magazine has written a letter to both the International Whaling Commission and the Spanish Embassy – giving total support to Greenpeace and the Rainbow Warrior.

HELP NEEDED

Greenpeace will always need help – to keep the Rainbow Warrior afloat, to help the whale in their fight for existence and to help the seals in Canada next year. To find out how you can help, please write to them (enclosing a s.a.e.):
