THE REAL WORLD DAY

Real World Day, as rescheduled after the cops had made sure peoples' voices could not be heard in Dover, was a blinding success and proves yet again that innovation is the way forward. Working from the premise that there is no reason why a demo has to take place on the day or at the time advertised, three days of demos took place, most of them starting at 8am! On Real World Day itself two groups of activists covered the Cambridgeshire area with the two demos dovetailing into each other at the evil Interfauna who breed beagles for vivisection.

Team 2 started off at the Babraham Institute, High street, Babraham but with security in evidence we quickly left and moved on to Laundry Farm, Barton Road, Cambridge. This place holds dogs and other animals for Cambridge University. Activists looked through windows and made lots of noise leaving them in no doubt that we will be back. Activists then moved on to Cambridge University vet school experimental farm 307 Huntingdon Road, Cambridge and then Interfauna, Abbotts Ripton road, Huntingdon. This company supplies Huntingdon Life Sciences with beagles and rabbits for them to torture and murder day after day. We arrived and joined up with lots more activists already there and carried on the loud demo. The noise was really loud and relentless with activists on all sides shouting and banging on drums. A large group of activists got a little weary and decided to take the weight off their feet and have a sit down..... in the middle of the road and the result was Ripton Road did not have any traffic flowing in any direction for almost an hour!!! All good stuff! The police called for reinforcements. Lots more cops arrived including a helicopter full of them. Not quite what their inspector expected and just as his boys started to get ready to move us on we got up, walked to our cars and onto our next target. We expected the police to tail us so we all went in seperate directions and met up later and yes all except one car was followed! We all managed to shake off our escort and meet up later for our last demo that was originally due to be the first of the day, Babraham Institute. What an evil lab this is with torture equipment visible for all to see.

You cannot stop us, you will never break us! We are always one step ahead of you. It is for the animals, so who cares what you throw at us? Remember, all we do is just fight harder!

& KICKING ASS

OPERATION KICK ASS

th June and we're out in early. Novartis in Frimley o feel the heat, turning workers and locking up c door. Not a bad start to eh? Half the employees ff before they even started ven had to send a delivery to the back! Nice try but get fooled that easily, three followed the delivery truck ck door much to the surprise is workers. The delivery boy strated after repeatedly ring- ell and not getting let in that d kicking at the door, surely assment.

s gates were then surrounded sts who just wouldn't budge. rity guard had a bit of a keeping us outside the gates at time workers in their cars ked up all along the drive. A few driving in told the security guard s out of the way but security that they should go away and k in about an hour - that wiped ug grins off their faces! Some of were surrounded with posters of es killed inside HLS.

headed over to Syngenta in where the window shutters vn so fast that the workers prob- ght it was a blackout. The build- surrounded by angry activists as ers hid from the nasty pictures s that THEY helped to murder.

mith Kline security didn't see us fter the Syngenta demo but as were closed we moved around ndows which security didn't see ither (if we get stopped one way, another). The windows were left open for any old megaphone hed through!

HLS customer for the day was el Chemicals in Surrey. They rds the door and tried to close ers on us but because of the 's plan to build the shutters a rs away from the building, we just stood next to the door and they decided NOT to lock us in the building (and who could blame them with the racket we made outside) so they just gave up and scuttled back into hiding.

Finally we held a demo for the Gateway To Hell campaign and took a trip into Gatwick Airport. We leafletted everyone for a while, including the BAA information desk, then started up with the megaphone and posters. Wow, what a response! Every pair of eyes was on us from the people standing around to people sitting down, from people waiting in line to the panicking security thugs charging towards us (we seem to pick up a lot of these security people don't we?). With a bit of quick wit and sneaky tricks we managed to avoid any police confrontations on our way out.

All in all a great day out, showing animal abusers that if they deal with HLS then they deal with SHAC, but this isn't the end, there's plenty more to come...

KICK ASS DAY 2

Thursday 30th June and Huntingdon's customers still get no rest. We all got out of our cars and ran around the corner to GSK where security were just too slow with those gates and we managed to get past them. They were running around frantically, calling on their radios for help, trying to round us up. They then tried to close the gates on us which was a bit of a challenge for them! We went through the other gate, which started off the frantic overreaction again. We left, job well done.

No worries, we were soon on our way to our next GSK for the day. They had their gates locked already, so we just scaled their walls and stood on top. We had a couple of megaphones going and the sound was amazing. After the security tried to coax us down (oh yeah, that'll work), we sped of to our next target, DuPont in Stevenage. The main building was out of action and everyone was working in small cabins, so that's where we went. After circling the cabins with megaphones and angry voices, we made a dash for the door. As we all gathered together pushing one way, the office workers did the same the other way!

We then dashed down to 5 Speed Couriers in Harlow. We saw the workers come out in force (a few pathetic looking people hiding behind fences) as we unleashed the megaphone on them. All the surrounding businesses had workers coming out wondering why 5 Speed were the target for such a campaign. I guess 5 Speed don't boast about their contract with animal killers.

Finally we visited the offices of World Precision Instruments in Stevenage. It was only a pokey little office, which just about fitted all of us in. I got the feeling that they didn't welcome our presence as they tried to be quite hostile but in the end looked quite harmless. This company supplies HLS and has avoided detection up until now – ah well they all get caught out in the end!

With two good days behind us we looked forward to the great day ahead of us, and plenty more demos to come...

KICK ASS DAY 3

For Kick Ass we set about planning a day of action against animal abusers who in one way or other are involved with Huntingdon Life Sciences, a sick company full of perverts who poison to death hundreds of animals a day.

We expected the police to be on full paranoid alert so we planned out our day with military precision We set off to Peterborough with two cars full of angry activists, cocked and ready. Our first car was set up as a decoy for the local "keystone coppers" and as predictable as they are and true to form they took the bait and followed them all day leaving the second group free to demo the area at will! Thanks go out to the local police, they never let us down!

Businesspost was the first to get a visit and this was the place we set the bait for the local police. While the marked and unmarked police cars hooked the first car they took them for a little drive and then back to Businesspost where they held a demo for the police to sit and watch thinking that they had done a good job following them. Little did the know that the second group had set off to the second location. I would have liked to see their faces when the call came over the radio that animal rights activist were in the area and visiting local companies! So much for pc plod eh?

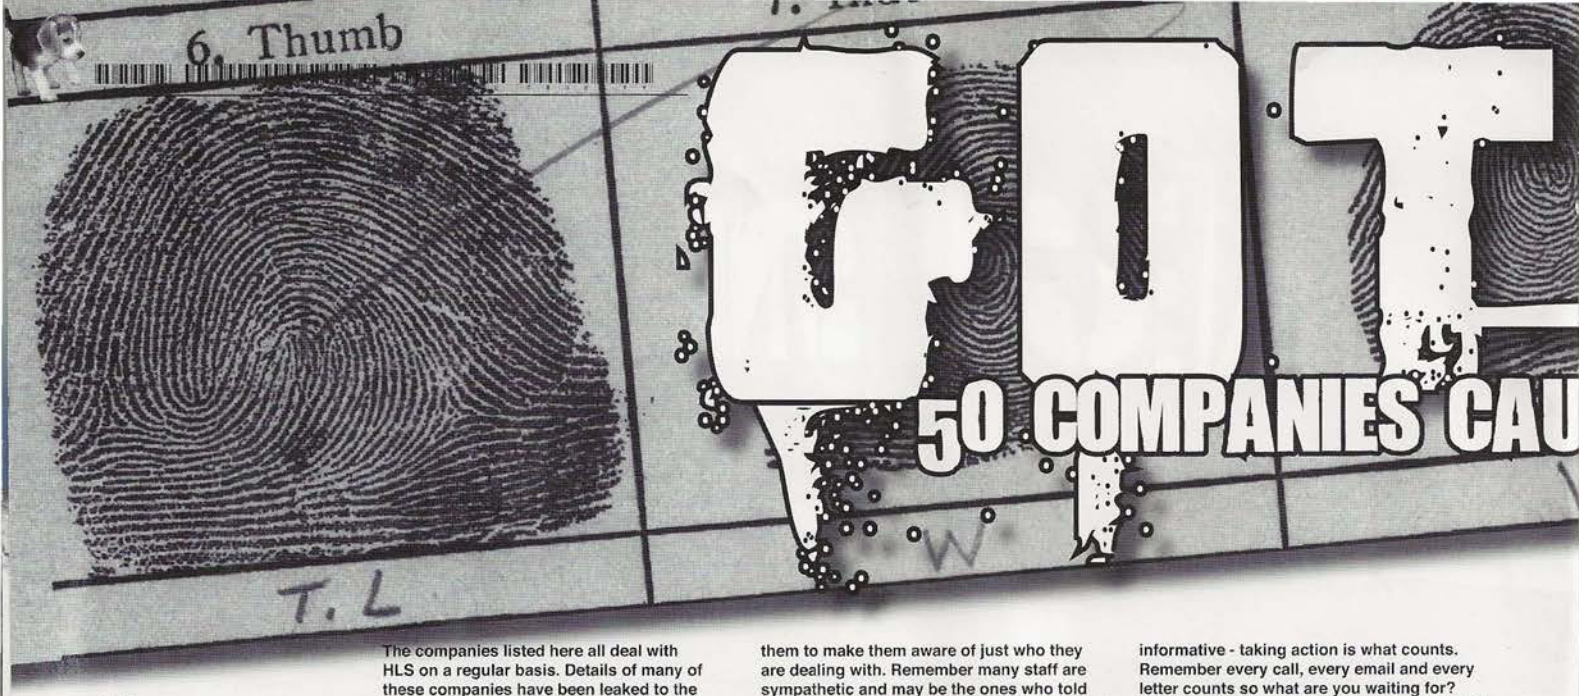

We made a visit to a local company to let them know that we received info that drivers at their company had been dropping equipment off just up the road from HLS and the equipment was then taken into HLS. They are looking into it and because they have made a statement in the past we are waiting for them to get back to us. We are sure it is the fault of workers making a quick buck at the expense of the company and we are sure they will get to the bottom of this and people will be looking for new jobs! We are keeping our eye on this one.

The first team was kept informed of our progress and we set off back to Businesspost while the first team set off for another drive around with the police following. We arrived at Businesspost and the looks on their faces were a sight to see!

We left them with a few things to think about and they were left in no doubt that dealing with HLS is not going to be a good thing for them to do. They are not worth the bother! Not only do HLS murder animals they have no shame, owing thousands of pounds to companies. Yes HLS do not pay their bills, ask Peterborough Valves. HLS owe them £59,000!!! Peterborough Valves are not the only company who are chasing HLS for unpaid bills! HLS are millions in debt - just remember that when you are thinking about doing business with them. All you will get from it is animal rights activists at your door and unpaid bills!

For the Animals, animal liberation or bust!

The companies listed here all deal with HLS on a regular basis. Details of many of these companies have been leaked to the campaign by sympathisers disgusted with HLS. Please call, write to and telephone them to make them aware of just who they are dealing with. Remember many staff are sympathetic and may be the ones who told us of their company's involvement in the first place! Keep your communications polite and informative - taking action is what counts. Remember every call, every email and every letter counts so what are you waiting for? Get active for the animals trapped inside HLS - they are counting on you.

1 SWISS RE

Swiss Re are the big scoop of the supplier expose. They are collaborating with HLS and are a big reason they are still open. They are providing them with insurance and showing they have no morals and no compassion.

GLOBAL WAR

KEY HUNTINGDON TARGETS HIT IN THE U.S.

Bio 2005 - Days of Action

Bio2005 - the Biotechnology Industry Organization's annual conference was held this year in Philadelphia over the past weekend. Naturally, Philadelphia Area and East Coast Area anti-HLS activists could not let the conference pass without making our mark and making it clear: deal with HLS, deal with us.

Saturday June 18

The Bio2005 weekend began with approximately 120 people gathered in Philadelphia to attend Hugs for Puppies' Anti-Vivisection Congress. Speakers Jerry Vlasak, Kevin Jonas, Andy Stepanian, Michelle Rokke, Anthony Nocella, and Lawrence Carter-Long discussed the unscientific nature of animal research, ways to investigate laboratories, campaigns against the vivisection industry, and direct action for animal liberation.

In addition to raising awareness and enthusiasm for working against vivisection, the event raised money for the group and raised $900 for the SHAC-7 legal defense fund. A few activists also visited the BioDemocracy Conference in order to distribute hundreds of booklets to activists of other causes who were in town for the BioTech conference.

Sunday, June 19

The action kicked off on Sunday, June 19, when close to 100 activists from all parts of the country, flanked by approximately 45 bike cops, cops, feds, civil affairs reps, and undercovers, gathered in downtown Philadelphia to protest against GlaxoSmithKline requesting that they stop working with HLS. Hundreds of flyers about GSK were handed out to curious passersby. The thunderous cries of "Puppy Killers - Leave Town!" echoed off the walls!

Meanwhile, back in downtown Philadelphia, about 15 anti-HLS activists gathered at the Bio2005 Welcome Reception to make clear to all Biotech attendees that HLS is not life, not science, and that any company who works with the lab will be getting some attention from SHAC. Large banners greeted attendees and media video cameras, and one news story of the event quoted an activist on why HLS was being targeted.

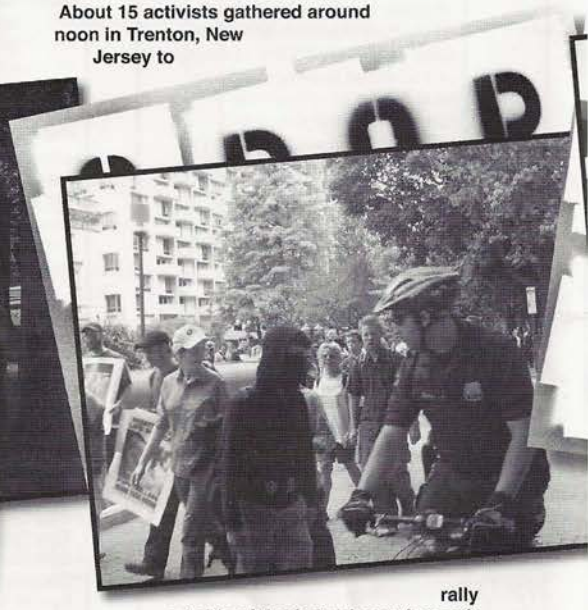

MORE HUNTINGDON TARGETS HIT HEAD ON IN THE U.S.

Monday, June 20

As Bio2005 opened its doors, two well-dressed activists stood by the entrance flyering attendees with special color postcards made just for the occasion. The cards showed pictures of demonstrations against HLS collaborators, listed examples of other such actions and an explanation, and noted that the only way for any company to avoid being targeted was to not work with HLS.

Some 600 cards were given out, and many executives stood reading them, clearly curious and interested, before tucking them into pockets or showing them to other attendees. Some became outraged, yelling about animal rights terrorism, while others noted that their company would never do business with HLS due to their "reputation." Attendees from dozens of countries and across the U.S. learned about HLS and the economic risks linked to doing business with the lab.

About 15 activists gathered around noon in Trenton, New Jersey to rally outside of the federal courthouse in support of the SHAC-7. Several media cameras filmed the rally, and one activist was interviewed by WCBS, the largest news radio program in New York City and surrounding areas, to discuss the case and the governmental assault on free speech.

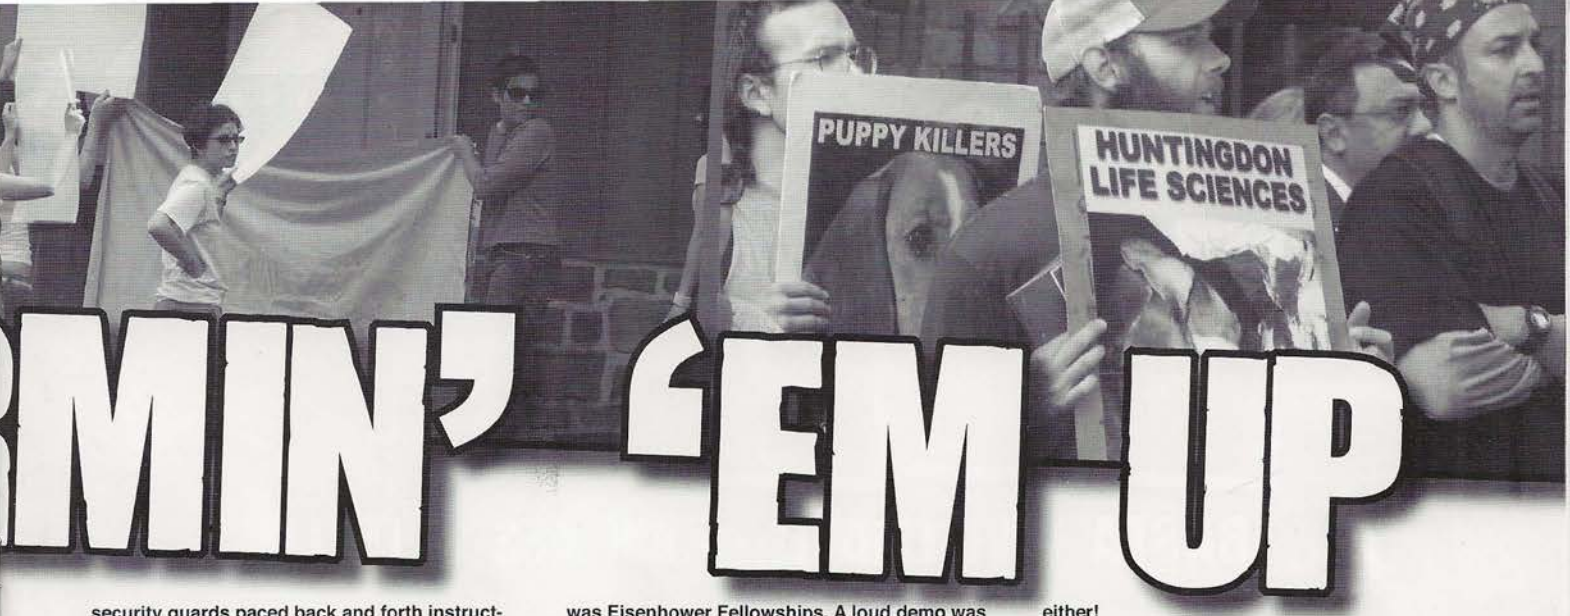

After the demonstration, activists headed north to the headquarters of Roche Pharmaceuticals, one of HLS's top customers, to greet workers as they left for the day. Like on our previous visit, front gates slammed shut, police cars zoomed in to ring the entrance/exit, and security guards paced back and forth instructing employees to leave through other exists (or escorting them past the "dangerous" protestors). Other gates and exits in the complex were closed and color cards about what happens to HLS supporters were distributed. The local newspaper came to take photographs and learn about how Roche is supporting the torture of puppies and other animals. A good time was had by all!

Tuesday, June 21

The final day of the conference began with a lunchtime demonstration at GlaxoSmithKline headquarters in Philadelphia. Employees were berated as puppy-killers, color cards describing what happens to the reputations of HLS supporters were distributed, and leaflets about GSK were handed out to passersby. Bullhorns blared through windows and entrances, and a good time was had by all- except Glaxo that is!

Activists then headed for two companies associated with GSK. The first was Eisenhower Fellowships. A loud demo was held mere feet from the company's windows. E.F. heads peeked out of windows, and literally dozens of neighbors stood on the street watching what was going on. Activists challenged Eisenhower execs to come out and explain to the neighbors and neighboring business people why they kept GSK CEO J.P. Garnier on the board of directors, but no one came out. Looks like your reputation in the neighborhood is going downhill, Eisenhower! Time to remove J.P. from your board...

Next stop was Quaker BioVentures, which seats GSK VP and Director of Research Tadataka Yamada on their Board of Directors. Several activists gained entrance to their seventh floor office and walked around cubicles, throwing flyers and shouting for Quaker to stop supporting animal abuse. A very loud demo followed on the front steps of the office building, with building security and Quaker execs standing around angrily as bullhorns and chants echoed through the lobby and all along the building. I'm sure the other clients and tenants in the building weren't happy either!

Activists then headed for the parking garage of GSK to greet workers as they walked in at the end of a hard work day. Scores of the color cards about HLS-related demonstrations were given out to employees, and chants and graphic signs met all GSK employees. A half-dozen security guards ringed the area and one side of the parking garage was closed down. GSK employees are learning about the campaign to close HLS, and learning that unless their company take a stand against working with HLS, GSK will be targetted continually.

To cap off the weekend, about 30 activists assembled in line on the steps of the Philadelphia Art Museum, site of the Bio2005 Gala Reception. Attendees entering the reception looked down to see the angry protestors with their signs about HLS, and listened to chants of "for the animals we will fight" and "HLS, shut them down." Many stopped to watch or pointed fingers. The point was further driven home to biotech employees from across the world - deal with HLS, and you've got trouble on your hands!

Local activists would like to thank all of those who attended - anti-HLS activists from Chicago, Boston, Ohio, Maryland, New York, New Jersey, Delaware, and other states all took part in the days of action to send a clear message to the Bio-Tech community and to GSK. The weekend was a great success and will provide momentum to continue the campaign against GlaxoSmtihKline, HLS, and the Vivisection Industry!

BASTA VIVISEZIONE! - KICK ASS IN ITALY

Shac Italy's Days of Action against HLS

Shac Italy hit HLS where it hurts today in the pocket, targetting its couriers and customers, who are all profiting from animal abuse. Also targetted was the Mauritian Embassy in solidarity with the Gateway to Hell campaign. Two days of demos were organized in the Support Shac7 week and Operation Kick Ass Week, in order to show our deep solidarity in the best way... continuing to target all the companies involved in the vivisection industry!

On friday the group of 13 activists took to Milan's busy streets outside the Mauritian embassy to let the city know how the Mauritian economy is resting upon the export of primates for the filthy industry that is vivisection. Literally hundreds of flyers were handed out, with banners and posters informing the public of Mauritius's shame. Discussions were even held with the consulate, where the embassy confirmed Air Mauritius had indeed pulled out of transporting primates, and admitted their fear for their tourist industry due to the effect of the campaign! Result!

So on to the next target, HLS couriers, DHL. This infamous company, who act as couriers for all players of the vivisection industry in the UK, such as HLS, Newchurch Guinea Pig Farm, Sequani Laboratories etc, were greeted by the activists descending on their premises. Basta vivisezione! (Stop Vivisection!) was screamed loudly letting them know we were here and we were ready to disrupt their afternoon. All the cars were leafleted, as well as many drivers and workers curious as to why the group of activists were on their doorstep. Our presence had been acknowledged and we moved on to the next target, GlaxoSmithkline.

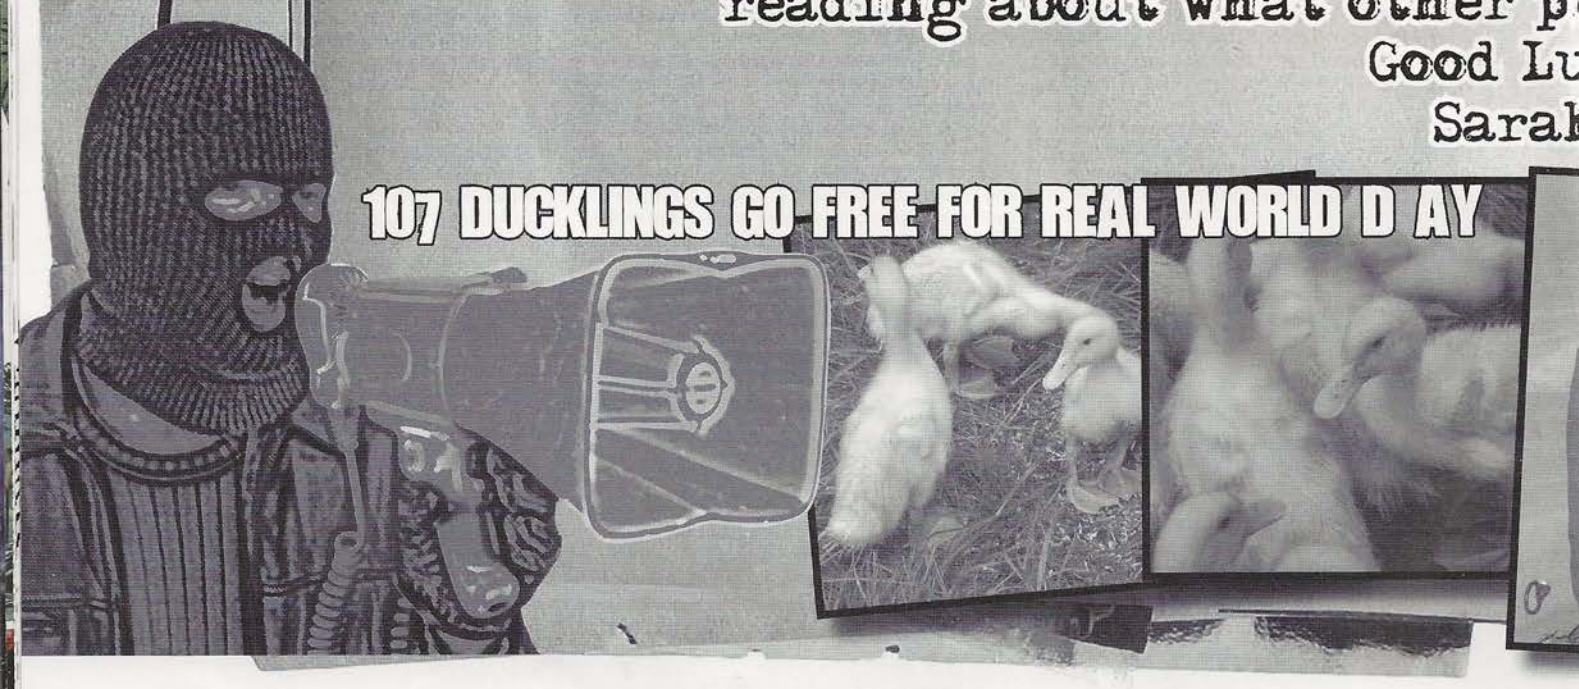

We had the pleasure of visiting yet another disturbing multinational where, as usual, the workers were hiding in their offices. Leaflets were handed out to those leaving with many predictable responses saying 'but we don't have animals here'. Nice try, but it is companies like Glaxo who are keeping hell holes like HLS open, where they do have animals and 500 of them are killed every day.

This was the second time GlaxSmith-Kline felt the heat in two days, as a group of 7 activists congregated outside a Glaxo factory near Parma the day before. Once again the workers were leafleted and hundreds of commuters along the main road got to see the banners and posters, making the tie between GlaxoSmithkline and animal abuse.

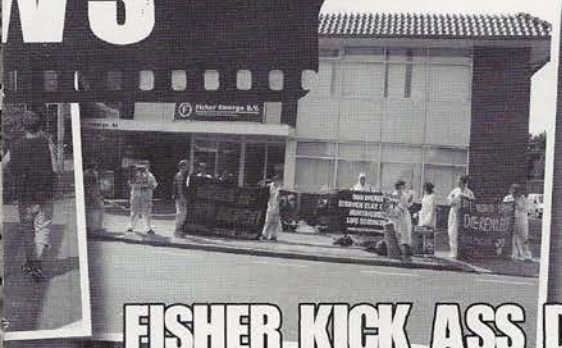

On all the demos we told them in english and italian that this is a global campaign and that have no fear, they will give in and we will smash HLS. There is no doubt that the vivisection industry will crumble, Basta vivisezione!

NOT NEGOTIABLE

FISHER KICK ASS DEMO - HOLLAND

15 activists from the Dutch AR group Respect voor Dieren protested against Fisher Emergo, which is a part of Fisher Scientific.We were all wearing white suits splattered with red paint, symbolizing the blood that has flown and continues to flow within HLS. Suits like these are sold by Fisher. Fisher Scientific earns money from supplying lab equipment and their Dutch site Fisher Emergo is facing the consequences of this week after week with never ending angry protests.

We named and shamed Fisher in this small town. Thousands of cars were passing by, looking at our banners, signs and hearing the megaphones and sirens. After listening to the tape with a beagle from HLS screaming in pain and fear, adrenalin pumped up and so did the noise of our megaphones. Straight in your face, the truth is here and cannot be ignored. The Fisher employees were waiting in the hall to go home after the protest. At least they thought so. One big guy came out to check if "everything was okay now." It wasn't because, we're not stupid! So a couple of us went back shouting at the Fisher employee. All he could do was to stare at his shoes. He tried to say something but nothing came out of his mouth. He ran back into the building, together with all the other cowards who are men enough to earn money from torture but not strong enough to face the consequences of their deeds.

At the same time a protester was waiting at the bus stop, apparently together with a Fisher employee. The employee chose to stand in the other end of the bus shelter, afraid of a conversation. What's wrong with you people? Never seen the footage of what goes on inside HLS? Or the latest horror at Covance? Can't you see that the money you earn is made from the blood of others. Life is too short to make the lives of others shorter, when will you realize it?

Protests will continue. We've stood there in snow, rain and sun. And we're up for much more. WE WILL NEVER GIVE IN. We will never let the animals down. Dump HLS! Any company who profits from animal abuse can expect the same to come their way!
IT'S UP TO YOU TO CLOSE DOWN HLS -
IT'S UP TO YOU TO FACE THOSE ANIMAL KILLING COWARDS.
IT'S UP TO YOU TO MAKE A DIFFERENCE.

News in Brief

UBS Capital Markets, one of America's largest market makers, has severed its ties with HLS. Well Done UBS.

Huntingdon Customer Phytopharm dramatically lost their sole broker sending their share price into a nose dive. As we go to press they have lost nearly 30% of their value in the last 2 weeks wiping millions off their value.

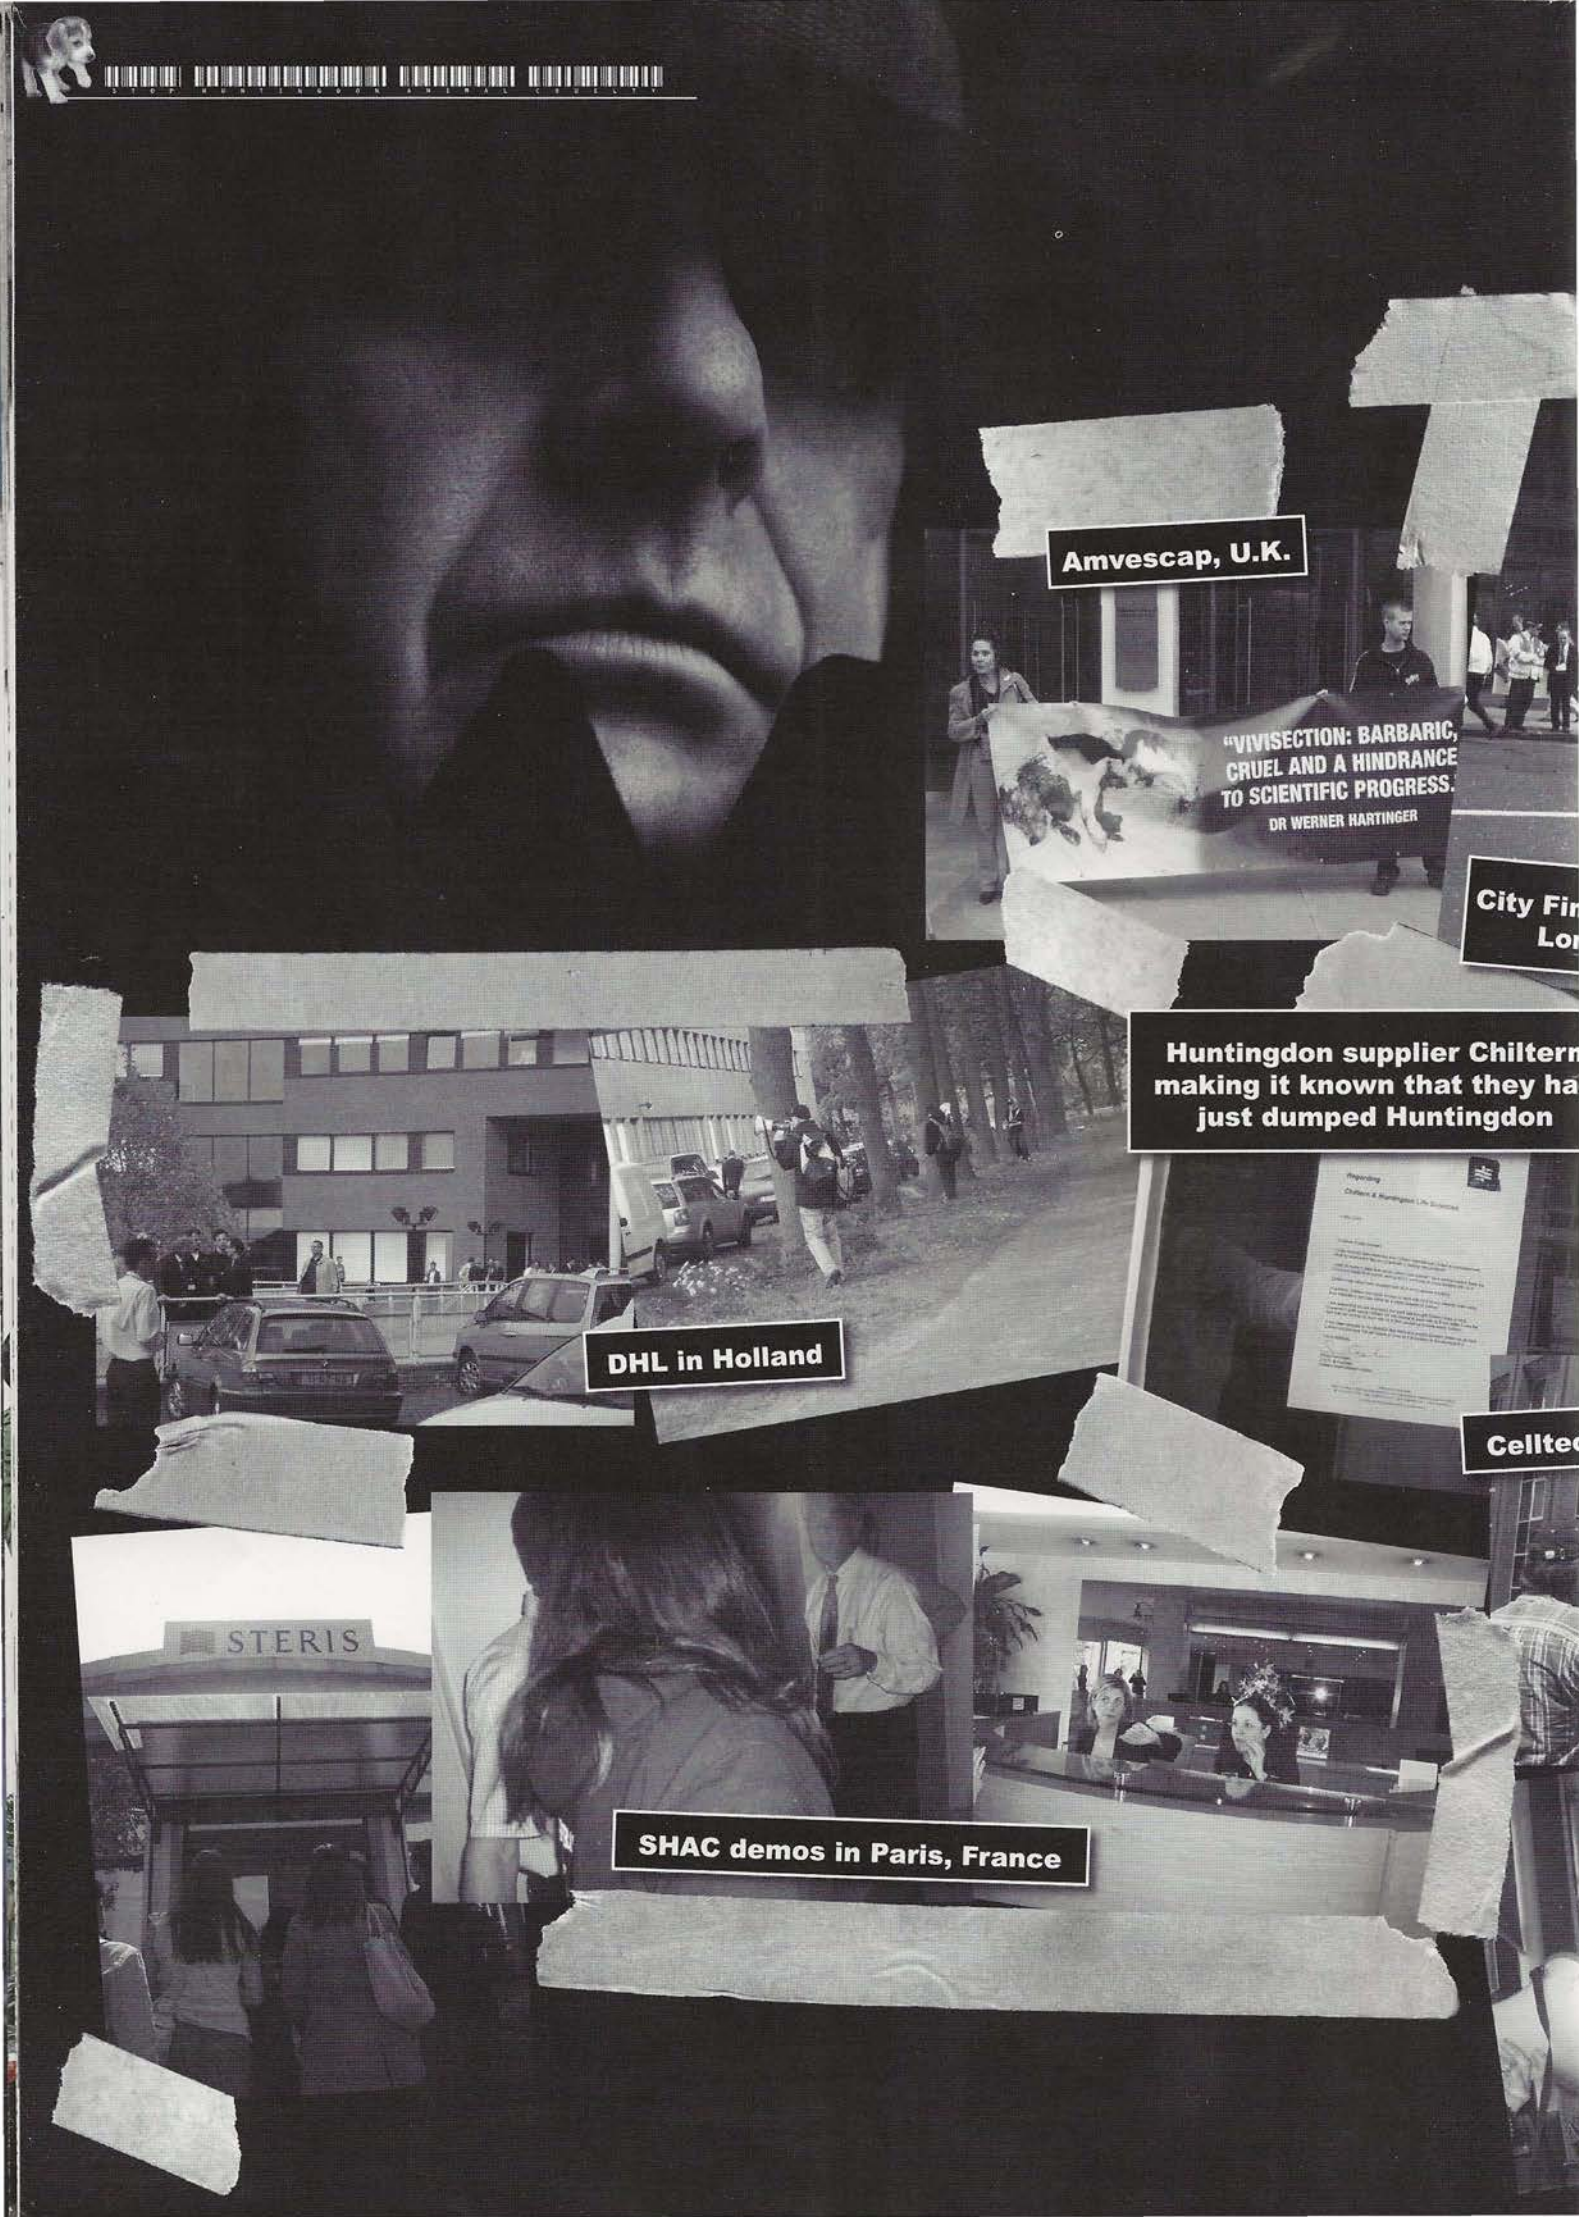

Two massive animal liberations took place in Russia at the end of May and the start of June seeing over 3,000 mice and 180 polecats go free.

Air Mauritius have agreed to stop flying primates from Mauritius. This a massive victory and knocks out one of the main primate exporting airlines. Within days this was also followed by Air China who had also been flying primates for years. See www.gatewaytohell.net for more details.

Huntingdon continue to lose key supply companies losing both volume and quantity. Two of note have been computer software company Labtronics and the UK's largest IT rental firm Hamilton Rentals.

What are Huntingdon Life Sciences and who are Stop Huntingdon Animal Cruelty?

If you are new to the campaign and this magazine then here is a 5 minute introduction to everything. Huntingdon Life Sciences are Europe's largest animal testing lab and they kill 500 animals every single day.

Huntingdon have 3 sites, the main one at Alconbury in Cambs and smaller labs at Occold, Suffolk and the other at New Jersey, USA.

In 1997 Channel 4 television placed a worker undercover inside Huntingdon in Cambridgeshire. She worked there for about 9 weeks and witnessed and filmed 4 month old beagle pups being punched in the face, terrified, beaten, shaken and workers pretended to have sex with the dogs. A few months after this was shown on TV, a US group PETA (People for the Ethical Treatment of Animals) released footage that an investigator Michelle Rokke had shot over 9 months inside Huntingdon's US lab. This footage was equally shocking. Huntingdon have been exposed several times since on a smaller scale.

Stop Huntingdon Animal Cruelty (SHAC) was set up in November 1999 to close down Huntingdon Life Sciences. During the campaign Huntingdon have been forced off the London Stock Exchange and The New York Stock Exchange. The Government under Tony Blair has been forced to become their banker and their insurance company. Without the Government's intervention on several occasions Huntingdon would have closed. In addition Huntingdon have lost countless financial support companies and hundreds of suppliers. The battle rages on until Huntingdon is finally closed.

DON'T FORGET THE PRISONERS

Please write a letter to these people that have been put in jail because of helping to defend animals. Remember they are in cages because of animals in cages - write a letter now, help them whilst they are in there, it could be you!
