UK BIOHAZARD WEEK OF ACTION

The Biohazard Action Week was aimed at exposing the serious health risks posed to us by an industry still reluctant to abolish animal tests. Demos around the UK informed the public of the fraudulent testing methods that account for thousands of deaths and birth defects in patients each year. Targets included Novartis who were exposed when they transported Herpes-B Virus infected blood samples in a taxi, Glaxo whose drug Seroxat has been linked to thousands of suicides in teenagers, and Du Pont, who were sued after their fungicide Benlate caused a mother's child to be born without eyes! These companies are HLS customers and this is just a few examples of the catastrophic risks they pose. Vivisection is a BIOHAZARD and this week we got that message out loud and clear!!

HUNTINGDON ACCOUNTS WITHHELD UNTIL AUDITORS CAN BE HIDDEN

Independent on Sunday

Huntingdon Life Sciences, the animal testing laboratories whose auditor resigned after becoming the target of animal rights activists, has been told that it does not have to file accounts in the UK until the Government passes legislation to protect the identity of its advisers.

HLS has not filed accounts since 2003 under a series of rolling exemptions granted by the Department of Trade and Industry. But a DTI spokesman said last week that circumstances were unlikely to change until legislation was introduced that would give auditors anonymity where a security risk existed.

The Government hopes to include the relevant measures in the Companies Bill, but that might not become law until the end of next year.

"The Government is fully aware of this issue and is considering how best to resolve it," the DTI spokesman said.

The Cambridgeshire company does its banking with the Bank of England, and its insurance is handled by the DTI, because commercial firms dare not do business with it. However, the company is unable to obtain an audit in the UK as this would reveal the auditor's identity when the accounts were published at Companies House.

The company's former auditor, Deloitte, resigned in 2003 after its offices around the world were targeted by animal rights activists.

HLS is audited in the US, but this is unacceptable in Britain because the audit firm involved is not UK registered.

An HLS spokesman said: "We are in a situation where anything that could be done to normalise our business practices would be welcome."

Measures proposed for the Companies Bill would exempt auditors from the obligation of signing off accounts and revealing their identities if they would be in danger from extremists.

But accountants believe the measures will not be adequate. Peter Wyman, a partner at PricewaterhouseCoopers, said: "There are inevitably large numbers of people at the audit firm who know the identity of the client and it only takes one of those to blow the whistle."

JUST LIKE DRUG DEALERS

Something that is becoming really clear is that the supplier campaign is beginning to hurt Huntingdon. Sure it won't close them down without the customer campaign and the financials but it is hurting them and making life difficult. The picture above is a case in point, it was taken at Industrial and Scientific supplies in Linton. This company does not even have a name on their unit and their delivery van is completely unmarked as they try to remain anonymous from SHAC (As if!)

This is by no means uncommon as there are quite a few of their suppliers who have no identification on their premises. Huntingdon frequntly have to travel to meet certain suppliers in car parks and on motorway junctions as the suppliers simply will not enter Huntingdon lest they be spotted. Scores of transport firms subcontract their visits to Huntingdon to other companies who do not realise who they are dealing with, in other words they are duped into going to HLS. One concrete company recently told us that Huntingdon told them they were a housing developement, the driver of this company commented to his boss after visiting Huntingdon that he realised it wasn't a housing developement and they had been duped. A few companies go into Huntingdon at really unusual times hoping they will escape detection. What a way to do business as they all sneak around like drug dealers thinking no one knows what they are up to. The more Huntingdon craves normality the more they mark themselves out as the most abnormal company in the world. As we say what a way to run a business!

Nobody hits the panic button as often as Huntingdon

A MESSAGE FROM HM THE QUEEN

Firstly let me congratulate you all on a superb year of bashing the ghastly Huntingdon Life Sciences. My husband and I frequently follow your SHAC antics on the TV thingie. My husband Phillip laughed out load when the NYSE debacle was on the television. It's so good to see all the other countries getting stuck in too (In my day we would have invaded them but that's another matter).

Now you all know what needs to be done so get out there and put HLS in a real fix in '06 and that's an order.
Yours in admiration,
HM the Queen

Last Editorial of 2005

Well here we are nearly at the end of 2005 and it is time to take stock of what has happened and how effective we have been.

We firmly believe that this has been our best year yet with next year promising to be even stronger. Let me explain why...
Firstly 2000 was an amazing year with 2001 close on its heels but then the Huntingdon tree was full of ripe fruit like a shareholder list, listing on the London Stock Exchange, London-based market makers, London- based auditor, I could go on but you get the picture...They were easy, balmy days. In 2005 the environment has changed completely with new laws seeming to come in every 5 minutes, no shareholder list, no UK based market makers or auditors, 20 injunctions against the campaign... Pretty bleak stuff eh?

Ha! Ha! You should know us better than that for out of darkness comes light and brings out the best in us all. In 2005 for the first time we have turned around Huntingdon's figures which is a feat in itself with the Government and every company in the industry banging the drum for them. We have stopped Huntingdon listing on the New York Stock Exchange with 45 minutes to go (the first time this has EVER happened in the Exchange's history), Huntingdon have failed to list accounts at Companies House now for over 2 years because they cannot find an auditor, we are getting rid of suppliers at a faster rate than ever before seeing 90 gone so far this year forcing Huntingdon's costs to more than double, Huntingdon have been forced to sell the very ground they exist on when they sold off all their labs to stay in business, 2005 saw the emergence of SHAC Global with hard-hitting demos happening in over 14 countries with Europe coming on side heavily and the US having their strongest year yet which is a credit to everyone there with the SHAC 7 trial about to begin. Pretty bleak stuff eh? Yeah definitely if your name is Huntingdon Life Sciences.

To be honest we are all itching to get Christmas out of the way and get into 2006 hitting Huntingdon harder, stronger and faster until they finally sink after been holed for so long. So we have shown what we can do so - what are you going to do about Huntingdon murdering 500 animals a day? It's not a question of what SHAC can do for you but what you can do for SHAC...Over to you for an amazing 2006.

TEK

HUNTINGDON RELEASE THEIR LATEST FIGURES

Well, well, well. Huntingdon's third quarter figures are out (Q July -Sept 2005)
They make not just interesting but incredible reading. First of all, their sales are down from $44.9 to $43.8 million which means that we have not slowed but REVERSED Huntingon's sales. The above figure is the single biggest figure in HLS's accounts.

New business signings were 7% less than they were a year ago. Capital expenditure more than doubled from $2.4 million to $5.1 million. Cash at hand is down from $33.3 million to just $12.2 million.

Huntingdon do not own their labs any more, leaving the once buoyant Andrew Baker to quote:

Andrew Baker the Company's Chairman and CEO said:
"These last few months have seen both exciting and frustrating developments in LSR's fortunes. In August, we announced the approval for listing on the New York Stock Exchange of LSR's common stock, only to be followed the morning of that scheduled listing with the unprecedented postponement by the Exchange. The NYSE's decision to postpone our trading, which continues today, has been met with condemnation by many organizations and the world's financial media, and provoked questions in the US Senate last week.

The Senate's examination of the animal rights extremist campaign that has targeted our company and the world of medical research has resulted in their introduction of new legislation to address the challenge of controlling this form of domestic terrorism. This progress, along with the continuing commitment we've seen from the UK government and law enforcement, is welcomed not only by LSR, but by the medical research community and others who recognize that this issue is far broader than the symptoms that have affected our company and your stock."

Bearing in mind that the unveiling of a company's figures is an opportunity for a CEO to explain how good the company's figures are, and all Baker does is rant about AR activists, this is very telling. There again he can't tell everyone how good their figures are as they are not looking good for HLS!

PDP have repeatedly lied to the campaign about their involvement with HLS. In a recent conversation when they were caught out yet again dealing with HLS, they tried to say that they deal with Centralabs, (who are the clinical trials part of HLS with all the same directors) and that therefore in actual fact they were not dealing with HLS. What liars.

Oh yes I nearly forgot, and the fact that they go into Huntingdon regularly is a big part of their lying as well.

Here is a list of new and old suppliers for you to contact to inform them of exactly who they are dealing with when they drive through the gates of Huntingdon Life Sciences. Some suppliers have told us they have found the scientific information enclosed by supporters particularly interesting so be sure to include these leaflets or contact us if you would like some. Be polite and informative at all times - these people may be animal lovers too and many of them are very supportive of our aims once they are given the info on HLS.

Please Note

This newsletter is not intended to encourage illegal activity of any kind. SHAC's intent is to close down HLS by legitimate means only, spreading information and disseminating the facts relating to HLS's record of animal cruelty, fraud and incompetence. We believe that there is more than enough evidence for the UK government to withdraw HLS's licence and close them down.

Readers must bear in mind that certain demonstrations eg home demonstrations are now illegal in the UK although they are perfectly legal in other countries, and the inclusion of reports relating to these demos abroad does in no sense amount to encouragement to do similar demos in the UK.

Company details are listed for the purposes of readers making informative and courteous communications with the companies listed. The details are not intended for repetitive, rude or threatening calls.

Readers are encouraged to familiarise themselves with the law by sending off for our legal booklet and visiting the legal website www.freebeagles.org. Please contact SHAC if you have any queries.
