Editorial

SHAC activists have been busy over the past few months leading up to the internal HLS leak. With HLS' dirty secrets being aired in public again and their alter-ego "LSR Associates" exposed, the pressure is reaching boiling point. HLS have been busy panicking, even resorting to temporarily removing one of their websites which was uncovered in the leak. Too late HLS - there's nowhere to hide!

Times are hard for the murderers at HLS, with their own accounts revealing consistent yearly drops in profits from nearly $7million in 2008, to $2million in 2010 - a decline of over 70%. Factoring in the current economic situation, which has led many of HLS' customers to close down sites and cut back on R&D, it's safe to say their financials are continuing to feel the heat - more on this will be released in the coming months.

With REACH legislation coming into effect, HLS are banking (pun intended!) on drawing in new contracts, which is one of the main reasons they dreamt up a whole new alter ago. Some of these customers have been revealed in the leak, and more will be revealed later down the line. Please contact them politely using the details on pages 4 - 5 and ask them to stop using such a sick company.

Even with all of this happening, we've not forgotten about our top target, AstraZeneca. As a major customer of HLS, think what losing their contract would do to their struggling finances. AZ have been seriously under the spotlight recently, with publicity stunts, protests, office invasions, disrupted conferences, email and phone actions and much more. Following the recent week of action, the stakes have been raised and it's time to do everything we can to get them to drop HLS.

Together we have the power to close Huntingdon Life Sciences. When the gates of the hell hole shut for good, make sure you're one of the people stood on the victory line, having done everything you could to SMASH HLS!

HLS embarrassed at University exhibition

February 2012: At the Imperial College of London's "Science Careers Fair", the big names like AstraZeneca, Pfizer and Roche went unrepresented, but activists found one name which they recognised on the exhibitors list: Huntingdon Life Sciences.

Despite having mislaid their student IDs, activists were able to get into the building easily and, having had a little look around at the other stands, they unfurled the posters they had brought with them, walked behind the HLS stall and informed the shocked students of the mistakes in the brochure.

Huntingdon Life Sciences remains one of the world's largest and most exposed contract testing laboratories, which many of the leading pharmaceutical, biopharmaceutical, crop protection and chemical companies, along with high street banks and insurance companies refuse to work with. They have experienced an impressive growth in how much debt they are in, only adding to their miserable existence.

While the activists were only able to get their voices heard inside the building for about five minutes before security pushed them out the door, they certainly made an impression. The HLS team (consisting of their Recruitment Manager and a Senior Toxicologist) and university staff embarrassed themselves further by dealing hysterically with the calm activists. One student began throwing HLS' branded pens around by the stall while others filmed what was going on. Once outside, activists held up their posters against the glass windows directly behind the sick company's stall.

"one mouse can save 100 lives"
- HLS representative

But the fun didn't end there. To add insult to injury, we planted an 'undercover student' who was present during all the commotion. While the demo surrounded HLS' stall, they were busy babbling their usual lies to confused students - whilst being secretly filmed. According to HLS, they "do NOT punch puppies in the face.. we would not be here if we did". But the statement of the year has to be the classic - "one mouse can save 100 lives" - HLS must have saved the entire world's population by now, given the amount of rodents they murder in so many pointless experiments!

Watch for yourself!

AstraZeneca feel the heat with conference disruptions

It can't always be easy being one of HLS' most important customers. Poor old AstraZeneca have a lot on their plate at the moment, with increasing financial difficulties causing them to shut down facilities (including animal labs - hurrah!), sacking employees by the thousands and drafting in new executives to replace the withering existing ones.

In addition to a global week of action in March 2012 (see pages 8 and 9), several conferences have been disrupted in previous months, making sure AstraZeneca are left in no doubt about what they get when they fund experiments at HLS.

First up was the Head of Personalised Healthcare for AZ. Smack bang in the middle of his keynote speech, activists climbed the stage to deliver an even more important message to the 100-strong audience: animal cruelty is a thing of the past, and dealing with HLS will never be tolerated! Point made, activists left the speaker sitting stunned in his chair.

MedImmune (an AZ subsidiary) were the next conference on the agenda. Event organisers even gave the activists a free escort to the location, and after calmly walking into the hotel they stormed MedImmune's powerpoint presentation, holding banners and chanting to the surprised audience. Rumour has it attendees paid large sums for the conference - well, we hope we didn't disappoint!

The message is clear: wherever HLS and their customers go, so will we! Check out even more AZ Action on pages 8 & 9, and get involved at:

>> Campaign Overview

Huntingdon Life Sciences (HLS) is Europe's largest animal testing laboratory. HLS kill maim and mutilate over 500 animals every single day in barbaric experiments. HLS are the most exposed animal testing laboratory in the world, with seven separate undercover investigations spanning from 1989 to 2009, each discovering routine cruelty and abuse. HLS were most famously exposed in 1997 when Channel 4 filmed undercover in their Cambridge Laboratory. They filmed workers punching beagle puppies in the face, falsification of data, unhygienic conditions and animal suffering. When workers spoke out in 2005, they said the same practices were common place and that they had witnessed workers hitting beagles.

In 2008 SHAC obtained research papers revealing that HLS were testing artificial sweeteners, cleaning chemicals and mushroom extract as well as studies into beagle pain syndrome, a growing chronic problem amongst research beagles. HLS have been exposed in 2009 by Animal Defenders International (ADI), who witnessed monkeys routinely ill from stress, chewing off their own fingers, vomiting faeces and collapsing. ADI also investigated the appalling conditions in which HLS' monkeys are bred and transported.

It is still legal in a UK lab to burn, electrocute, starve, shoot and poison animals. Your MP and the RSPCA have no right of access to any UK laboratory, and Section 24 of the Animals (Scientific Procedures) Act 986 states that if anyone publicises what they have seen inside a UK lab they can be sent to prison for up to two years. What do these places have to hide?

Stop Huntingdon Animal Cruelty (SHAC) formed in 1999 to close HLS. SHAC have had some incredible successes with hundreds of companies vowing to end their contracts with the lab. At present, HLS do not even have a commercial bank account or insurance company – the UK Government act as both using tax payers money. HLS are over $120 million dollars in debt and many global companies have dropped HLS, including HSBC, Barclays, Lloyds TSB, NatWest, Marsh and Citigroup. Our shareholder campaign was so successful that HLS have had to de-list from global stock exchanges, buy back all their shares and become a private company. The best way to stay up to date with the most recent developments of the campaign along with all the protests around the world is to check out our website. You can also find listings of all HLS' customers and suppliers on our website at www.shac.net.

2012 HLS LEAK

A large amount of internal documents have been leaked from inside HLS, putting their confidential client documents, experiments, invoices, unpaid bills, staff communications and even their secret alter-ego in the public domain.

The documents reveal previously unknown suppliers and customers, as well as re-confirming existing ones - so please don't hesitate to contact them by finding their details using the details on the following pages. These documents go to show that HLS are still full of holes - even people working within their own company hate them enough to dish the dirt on them!

The leaked documents include:

- Customer Documents
  Including 5 (marked) confidential documents
- Supplier Documents
  Including suppliers that have had probelms getting unpaid invoices paid.
- Misc. Documents
  Including 5 personal court documents relating to an employee who had a car accident that HLS were meant to keep totally confidential
- We were also leaked several personal documents and emails e.g. expenses forms, hotels booked, travel insurance bought as well as several price lists for various experiments
- Emails between HLS & Suppliers/ Potential Suppliers: Including related attachments & documents
- Emails between HLS & Customers: Including email threads

HLS' SECRET ALTER EGO // REACH CAMPAIGN LAUNCH

Q: What happens when you ruined your reputation around the world because you got caught out falsifying test data, punching puppies in the face, abusing animals on a routine basis, flouting laws and employing inadquate staff?

A: Just make a whole new identity and pretend to be someone else!

Calling themselves 'LSR Associates' and pretending to be anything other than the same old, puppy-punching hell-hole, HLS have been attempting to operate under a new company name in order to disguise their true identity.

Leaked information has indicated HLS are trying to present themselves as a vaguely reputable company. Grooming potential clients with the usual corporate mumbo jumbo neatly wrapped in a glossy new website (www.lsr-associates.com), HLS have been busy misleading potential new customers into believing they are actually a company that definitely doesn't falsify test data, break the Good Laboratory Guidelines repeatedly, or attract the attention of global animal rights groups.

They've even shied away from using their full address, so desperate to escape their well-earned reputation. But why would anyone go to such lengths in order to deceive all new clients? In the past years, the EU launched a new directive known as REACH, which demands that all new chemicals be re-tested – largely on animals. Since poisoning animals to death is HLS' speciality, new contracts from the REACH scheme were glistening in their greedy eyes as the EU rolled out the scheme and put it in force. Wanting to attract the new custom but not wanting people to realise exactly who they were, HLS decided to mask up and take action – hiding behind a false veil and pretending to be a totally different company.

"THE COMBINATION OF HLS AND LSR ASSOCIATES IS A BIT LIKE ROLLING A TURD IN GLITTER. YOU'VE GOT A SHINY NEW COATING BUT INSIDE IT'S THE SAME OLD SHIT."

>> Take Action!

Of course, as always SHAC find out who these people are and who HLS – or shall we call them LSR Associates - deal with. The customers below are the most recent REACH clients that HLS have gained either through their fake alter-ego or the more traditional way of not pretending to be someone else. Please contact them immediately and ask them to cut their contract with HLS / LSR Associates!

GIVAUDAN

Givaudan's REACH contract with LSR Associates / HLS is worth half a million £ and they have a confidentiality agreement with HLS (look how well that turned out! Whoopsie!). They started funding experiments in 2009 and are still using HLS now.

SHAC CROATIA LAUNCHED!

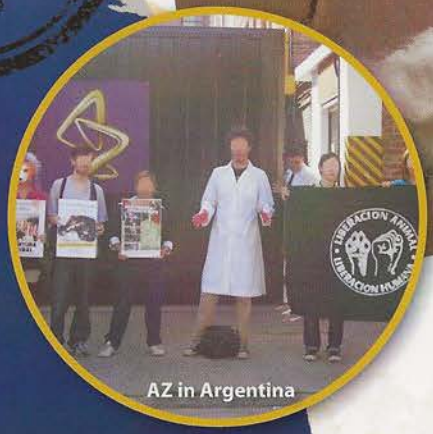

SHAC Croatia sprang into action at the start of 2012. Naturally, HLS customers everywhere seem to think they are safe even in faraway places. Wrong! GlaxoSmithKline were the first to be named and shamed, SHAC Croatia style. Workers, who were trying to get home after a long day of abusing animals, shuffled around miserably in the reception, too ashamed to come outside. Good work, SHACtivists!

A BITTERSWEET BETRAYAL: Dogs, rabb killed to test "new" sweetener inside HLS

A British animal testing laboratory is at the center of controversy after it was revealed that dogs, rabbits and rats were killed to test sweetener which is essentially already on the market. UK-based Huntingdon Life Sciences (HLS), Europe's most exposed animal testing laboratory [1] carried out the tests which resulted in the suffering and deaths of over 480 animals.

In a series of shocking experiments which came to light in late 2011, a sweetener known as Advantame was force fed to over 44 dogs, nearly 100 rabbits and 360 rats, ultimately resulting in all being killed after months or years. In an additionally cruel twist, the sweetener tested was not even a 'new' product – having been derived directly from aspartame – another sweetener which has been tested extensively and is already widely consumed by the public [2]. Experiments were funded and carried out by the Japanese company, Ajinomoto Co.

A total of three experiments were carried out on dogs at HLS in Suffolk, the third being the high dosage experimental procedure. A total of 44 puppies (aged between 22 – 26 weeks) were packed into crates and shipped into HLS from a beagle breeder in the USA. Upon arrival, they were divided up and kept inside metal cages while being force fed varying dosages of Advantame sweetener. The dogs remained in such conditions for a full year. Each dog, no matter what health condition, was then killed following the experiment at just over 13 months of age [3].

Additionally, a group of 96 rabbits from Highgate Farm in Lincolnshire were kept in solitary confinement inside plastic cages and impregnated on arrival at HLS, Suffolk. After one week, the administration of Advantame began using a procedure known as 'oral gavage' – forcing a tube down the rabbits' throats in order to pour concentrations of the substance straight to the stomach. Naturally, this method of administering substances is extremely traumatic for animals who are shy and gentle by nature. One rabbit died of this procedure alone – she was "killed after showing convulsion-like signs, vocalization, and respiratory distress shortly after dosing ... This death was considered to arise from difficulties during the gavage dosing". Later during the experiment, a further five rabbits were killed due to adverse health problems and several rabbits aborted their unborn litters. The shocking document goes on to reveal that approximately 20% of the pregnant female rabbits receiving the highest dose of Advantame became so ill that they had to be killed before the scheduled date. At the end of the designated experiment, all survivors and their unborn babies were killed [4].

Several separate experiments were carried out on rats for Advantame. One particular experiment involved forcibly impregnating young female rats and killing their babies after a short exposure to the sweetener. Experiments began when the rats were only 6 weeks old. The female rats were impregnated and their babies then added to the experiment once born. Those females that did not mate with a male by day 25 were killed, and those that did not give birth after another 25 days were also killed. In addition, mothers who lost their litters before day 21 of lactation were killed. All mothers were eventually killed during the study, and the babies killed at 14 days old by being gassed to death. During the time they were allowed to live, the rats and their young were fed varying concentrations of Advantame [5].

Says Helen Cassidy of Stop Huntingdon Animal Cruelty: "it is quite unthinkable that in 2012, companies such as HLS deem it acceptable to use and kill animals for the sake of testing something as senseless as another sweetener, which is already consumed by the public. Each of these experiments details immense suffering and loss of life. The general public have had enough of these ruthless, outdated and cruel experiments and are rightfully outraged at the prospect of such a pointless product being the cause of so many individuals to be killed. These experiments are unacceptable, unethical and unscientific – and need to end – now."

National demo against Highgate Farm

Saturday, 31st March 2012

Angry activists gathered outside Highgate Farm in Lincolnshire to protest against their continued breeding of rabbits and ferrets for experiments. The farm's owner Geoff Douglas seemed to have a bout of schizophrenia in the media, claiming contradictory or simply untrue things from one paper to another. Masquerading as an avid "animal lover" and claiming that the animals were kept in "beautiful conditions", Geoff seemed to also suffer from temporary memory loss when it came to where the animals actually went or if he did in fact supply HLS. Well Geoff, at least compassionate people are here to set things straight: Yes, keeping rabbits in bare metal cages suspended above their own excrement in a windowless shed is indeed cruel. No, your efforts do not help the NHS or save people's lives. And, no, testing sweetener on animals is not acceptable. Well, at least we know where your animals go, even if you don't - and we plan on stopping what's happening once and for all!

PRISONERS OF CONS

Receiving letters and cards from animal rights supporters helps to stop prisoners feeling isolated from the outside world. For many it is the highlight of their day, and other prisoners are often amazed at the amount of mail animal rights prisoner receive! If you are not sure what to write, just let them know what is going on in your daily life, keep things positive and cheery. You could send in poems and stories, or interesting news articles. Steer clear of asking specific questions relating to their offences. If you aren't one for writing, then just a card to let them know you are thinking of them will always be appreciated. Don't worry if you do not receive a response, or it is a long time until you hear back, because prisoners often have a lot of mail to respond to, or they may not have enough time or funds to reply.

YOU HAVE THE POWER TO SAVE THEM.

SHAC volunteers work tirelessly, seven days a week to bring an end to suffering like this. With your help, we can save more lives and stop the horrific cruelty going on inside HLS. SHAC is a global campaign that has closed HLS twice and is at the brink of closing them a third time - for good. Funds are an important part of keeping the campaign running; if you could spare any amount, we would greatly appreciate it. Don't let HLS get away with murdering 500 animals each day - take a stand!

BEFORE SHE DIES
SHE'LL WISH SHE NEVER LIVED.
Burnt, sliced open, infected and poisoned - all for the sake of money. We, like you, find the use and abuse of intelligent, sentient animals inside HLS beyond unacceptable. Join the global campaign against the abuse and help us put an end to it.
